

Metropolitan Waterfront Alliance

June 2, 2014

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Contact Information

Roland Lewis, MWA President/CEO, 212-935-9831 x101, rlewis@waterfrontalliance.org

Alison Simko, MWA Communications Associate, 917-929-8375, alisonsimko@yahoo.com

MWA Publishes the 2014 SPLASH!, a Family Guide to Free & Low-Cost Waterfront Fun

New York, NY – For the mom or dad who wants to take the family on a boat tour this summer, the camp counselor trying to plan waterfront field trips, or anyone needing ideas for fun and education at the waterfront, the Metropolitan Waterfront Alliance has just published the 2014 edition of SPLASH!, a guide to free and low-cost water-related opportunities for education, enrichment, and recreation for kids of all ages in the metropolitan region.

SPLASH! is free to all, and contains listings of dozens of organizations that offer water-based field trips and educational programs. The program list activities such as rowing, kayaking, sailing, fishing, boatbuilding, seining, water-testing, oyster reef restoration, ecological monitoring and data collection. SPLASH! lists organizations by location and includes detailed program descriptions and contact information. For your free copy of SPLASH!, go to waterfrontalliance.org/projects/waterfronteducationguide/.

MWA believes that water-related programs can offer rich lessons in social studies, history, science, art and math, not to mention a deep appreciation for the irreplaceable natural resource that is our harbor. Our hope is that every child in the metropolitan area has the experience and knowledge to become invested in the care, improvement and responsible use of the waterfront.

The Metropolitan Waterfront Alliance (<http://www.waterfrontalliance.org>) works to protect, transform, and revitalize our harbor and waterfront.

###